We work closely with policymakers and community and business leaders to ensure New York is the best place to build and grow a tech company. We advocate for increasing access to computer science education and ensuring New York is producing homegrown tech talent. We host events and form partnerships that strengthen the ties between our community and incumbent interests, as well as the ties between tech companies and city and state policymakers. We focus our work on New York, and we work hard to support an ecosystem that represents the city and state we all love.
